Section 5 - Director's and Officer's Liability

Directors and Officers can be sued as they have a fiduciary duty to the corporation, employees, volunteers, shareholders, creditors, and the government as stated in statute and bylaws.

Directors' and Officers' Liability Insurance provides protection for individual Directors and Officers (D&Os) and for the Corporation they represent, as follows:

1. It will pay on behalf of the individual D&Os, all damages and expenses that they become legally obligated to pay and which can't be indemnified by the Corporation; or
2. It will pay on behalf of the Corporation, for claims against the D&Os where indemnification is required or permitted.

The policy provides coverage for damages, judgments, settlements and costs, costs of investigation and amounts incurred in the defense of legal actions, claims or proceedings and appeals arising therefrom.

It is imperative that all real or potential incidents and/or claims be reported to CARS immediately once known. The failure to report a claim can void any coverage you may be provided with CARS insurance policy. This is not limited to bodily injury or property damage losses and does include club management (directors and officers) occurrences.

Duties of the D&O's

This type of coverage has become critically important in managing a company's business affairs and in attracting and retaining Directors and Officers. In overseeing all aspects of an organization's operations, D&Os must maintain the ideals of:

- Obedience — to the terms of the organization's bylaws and constitution, as well as the applicable statutes;
- Loyalty — to the best interests of the organization;
- Diligence — to act with the care that a reasonable person in similar circumstances would exercise when in a similar situation.

The Consequences

The breach, or alleged breach, of any of these principles, if it leads to financial loss for any of a company's stakeholders, could be grounds for a legal action. Any financial damages awarded can lead to personal financial liability for D&Os.

Liability can rest with an individual Board member, or the entire Board, as a consequence of a single director's actions or inaction.

D&O insurance protects the assets of the corporation

While most bylaws allow for the indemnification for D&Os for losses they incur while acting in their capacity as D&Os, a compelling reason to obtain D&O insurance, in addition to that, is when the Corporation is unable to indemnify D&Os for their costs, expenses, damages, judgments or settlements. For example, a Corporation will not be able to indemnify:

1. When it is financially impaired and does not have the funds available for indemnification,
2. When defending a derivative action (usually a shareholder lawsuit), since those actions cannot be indemnified by the Corporation without court approval, or
3. Unless the director or officer acted honestly and in good faith with a view to the best interests of the Corporation. Furthermore, D&Os have a fiduciary duty to the shareholders to protect the assets of the Corporation. When indemnification takes place, the assets of the Corporation are eroded. A D&O Policy ensures that the assets and, therefore, the shareholders' investments, are preserved.

Section 6-Member Club Property Insurance

Clubs are able to purchase $10,000 of insurance for property the club owns, rents or leases for items such as timing equipment, radios, event equipment, tools, tents, trailers and signage. Clubs with permanent and/or temporary property in their care, custody and control should contact StoneRidge Specialty Insurance for higher policy limits.
